

Research Expeditions

To understand in details the mechanisms that govern our environment, intensive research expeditions are planned on a specific region and a limited period of time. Several teams are involved in these expeditions and a variety of instruments are used.

To be written

